Facts About Optometry.

By R. A. Walters, Optometrist, 801-A Broadway.

Over Gillaspie's Drug Store.

Many of the universities and colleges of the United States have during the last few years added Optometry to their list of studies. These colleges instruct students in this profession and prepare them to take the necessary examinations.

The requirements demanded by these colleges before a student will be admitted are very high. For instance, Columbia University, New York, requires a minimum of four years at high school before a student will be accepted in Optometry. After admission he must pursue the prescribed studies at least two years before he is eligible for graduation. Many other colleges have similar requirements.

After graduation a student is not permitted to practice Optometry until he has taken the standard examination prescribed by the state in which he purposes practicing.

They Couldn't Know

BACK in 1818 the greatest newspaper of the day declared that the world had reached the limit of human expansion. It even went further, saying that there weren't enough supplies in the world to support further growth of population.

The mind of 1818 couldn't conceive of the miracles that human ingenuity would perform during the twentieth century. It couldn't imagine the wonders that would be wrought by new agricultural methods and modern manufacturing genius. It was ignorant of transportation as we know it, or the progressive sales methods of today. It could not see the vital part that would be played by advertising.

Even today there are some who fail to realize what an important factor advertising has become. Advertising is as much a part of today's life as electricity, antiseptic surgery or automobiles. It keeps us up-to-date on the many things we need in order to live profitable, happy and useful lives. It presents for our approval articles of all kinds and for all purposes. The requirements of each member of the family are met by advertised offers of good merchandise of proved value.

The advertisements save time, money and effort for those who read them and follow their guidance. They are practical guarantees of satisfaction.

Don't lay aside this paper without reading the advertisements
